

Lexelerator

Legal Wiki: a lawyer's point of view

Thibault Verbiest

Avocat aux barreaux de Bruxelles et Paris

www.ulyS.net

www.droit-technologie.org

thibault.verbiest@ulyS.net

Brussels 7 May 2008

Background

–SME's are more and more concerned with online issues.

–Online worlds are not exempt of legal obligations.

=>SME developing online business must be aware and advised.

–Only few SME's (and few lawyers) are up-to-date with online legal issues.

=>it is necessary to inform.

A legal WIKI ?

- Best way to inform is WIKI because it is:
 1. Always online
 2. For everybody from every countries
 3. Always active and enriched via contributors
 4. It makes people exchanging via discussion tools and enriching knowledge database

How it works ?

- Legal definitions give a frame everybody can understand
 - Using the frame, everybody can be proactive when developing a business strategy.
 - Using the frame, everybody can analyse problems
 - Using the frame, everybody can point out specific issues and avoid « simple » legal problems
- => It is essential for SME's (lawyer clients)

How it works 2 ?

–From lawyer's point of view, it is useful too.

1.Indeed, clients are supposed to have been thinking before developing.

=>if problems arise, they are minimized.

2.Clients are already aware of vocabulary and kind of issues

=>they understand what the lawyer explains.

=>They understand why the lawyer advises to do this and not this in the future.

Is Lexelerator the ultimate ?

- It is not: SME's are not lawyers.
 - It is not: some problems are only revealed « when it is too late » for a basic solution

 - But Lexelerator gives a basic helpful knowledge.
- =>Lexelerator and lawyers are complementary.

Can Lexelerator be upgraded ?

- It must !
- New definitions (according to new online concepts and issues) must be provided.
- Lexelerator could be inescapable to be well-informed (Lexelerator must be the homepage of every SME's !)

Thank you !

Thibault Verbiest
Avocat au barreau de Paris et de Bruxelles
www.ulyS.net
www.droit-technologie.org
thibault.verbiest@ulyS.net